Government cuts cause decline in programs

By Barbara Attridge

There has been a profligate decline in federal government sponsored programs over the past few years, said John Gaskland, executive director of college associations at Central Valley State University. In November of 1981 there were 35 sponsored programs funded over three years sponsored with 1,000 students in attendance.

In November of 1984 the number of programs sponsored dropped to 32 and enrollment was down to 445, according to figures from the department of the state.

Gaskland said that the reason for the decline is between Congress' budgetary cuts.

Gary Williams, head of food and beverage management at the University campus said all students from the food and beverage management, human food preparation and the cooking arts program were scheduled to work and serve at an Oktoberfest festival on Oct. 13. The event is sponsored by Westview Foods, Spokane, City and (964)-PM radio station.

Williams has been supervising the festival for the past three years, and while 1984 was around last year about 1,000 were expected to attend on that day.

Approximately 100 kilograms of produce was to be used at the festival, as well as 14,000 cans of beer, 10 to 15 cases of apple juice and 4,000-1,000 cases of water were to be consumed, said Williams.

Williams said all the food was being donated by Central Foods, Inc., Apple River and Piller's Bakery. Service is being provided via dogs and about 25 of them would be helping for Thanksgiving Day Parade on Oct. 14.

also prepared to pay more money.

He added that though the dollar value has increased he didn't like the state over the years, due to increased costs in running the programs. The programs already were cut in 1981.

Gaskland said that government sponsored programs are funded by the federal government.

The college charges the federal government in many dollars a day for the program they are participating in, he said.

Declining what programs will be sponsored depends on industry and community needs.

along with most from the college and localities. There is some variety of sponsored projects available.

However, single was prohibited early on the work-related training for students programs, in an effort to make it an office space for a private school.

Gaskland said there have been changes over the past years back at the elimination of the federal school program because of lack of money. Many have also been a reduction in the number of students enrolled in the existing 1984 and students enrolled in a private school program for the same reason.
